

University of Michigan Detroit Observatory

1398 East Ann Street, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109-2051 (corner of East Ann & Observatory Streets)

Francis W. Kelsey et al.: Archaeology without Limits

Robin Meador-Woodruff

Associate Curator,
UM Kelsey Museum of Archaeology

3 p.m. Tuesday, April 5

in the Observatory Library
(seating limited to 40 people)

In the early 20th century, Francis W. Kelsey, along with other archaeologists in academia, treated the discipline of archaeology as a comprehensive field of study in which few peripheral topics would be dismissed as irrelevant. Their far-reaching vision greatly influenced many diverse areas of academia and politics and played a role in international, national, and campus institutions.

Tours & Information:

The Observatory will be open for tours from 1 to 4 p.m. on Tuesday, April 12th and again on Tuesday, April 19th. For a complete tour schedule, and further details on the Observatory's history, collections and programs, please call us at (734) 763-2230, or visit our web site:

www.DetroitObservatory.umich.edu

Lecture Series:

Each month Detroit Observatory hosts faculty and other professionals speaking on topics that heighten our understanding of 19th-century science, technology and culture. Lectures are free and open to the public. They are held in the Observatory Library.

★ Recognized by the Michigan Historic Preservation Network, the American Association for State & Local History, the City of Ann Arbor, and the American Institute of Architects-Michigan for its award-winning restoration and museum. ★

Winter 2005 Lecture Series